Now the Max-Eyth school has finally got a caféteria.
But there are some things which have to be better. For example, because of the concrete elements it looks so bare and cold and there isn't a lot of colour. Besides there should be more plants in the two level building.

But over all it is modern and full of glas.

In the front there are big windows through which the sunlight passes. Because of this, it is very bright in there....
