

The new Max Eyth School Cafeteria

In the Max Eyth School we have a new cafeteria since last week. At first glance all looks good. A pretty glass wall gives you a view over the old "Zeughaus" ruin. The building combines old and modern and so it looks like rustic and modern together. But at second glance it's not all so good. The food there costs too much. It's all too expensive for pupils, there are prices like at a train station shop and not at a school or worker cafeteria. And there is not much warm food. So I think in future the cafeteria will be used by the pupils to sit there but not many pupils will buy there some food because it's too expensive.

From: Simon Reinhardt
12 FOE2